ABSTRACT

The items in this instrument are designed to represent NSPRA Program Standards. The instrument is intended to serve as a basis for evaluating the extent to which an organization has made provision for organizing and conducting a formal public relations program as advocated by NSPRA. The standards adopted by NSPRA appear in boxes and the evaluation item(s) pertaining to each standard appear immediately following each box. A summary form lists the eight major categories of standards and indicates how many evaluation items are included in each category. An appendix contains official documents adopted by the Association, such as standards for educational public relations programs and professionals, ethics for educational public relations, and constitution and bylaws.

Introduction

The items in this instrument are designed to represent NSPRA Program Standards in operation. By using this instrument, school public relations professionals and the executive officer(s) of an educational organization (as defined by NSPRA, the term "educational organization" includes school districts; community colleges; and national, regional, state, or local associations and agencies) should be able to perform an evaluation of their public relations unit.

This instrument is not designed to provide an indication of how good or how bad the organization's PR is. Neither is it designed to assess the product of the organization's formal PR program. It is intended to serve only as a basis for evaluating the extent to which the organization has made provision for organizing and conducting a formal public relations program as advocated by NSPRA.

Such an evaluation, if performed realistically and honestly, should identify strengths and weaknesses of the organization's public relations unit and provide a factual basis for making decisions in the interest of strengthening the unit. Information compiled through using this instrument also may serve as the basis for an annual report on the public relations unit to the governing body of the organization.

The user of this instrument will note that the Standards adopted by NSPRA appear in boxes and the evaluation items(s) pertaining to each Standard appear immediately following each box. In responding to some items, the user may find it necessary to use a non-literal approach. Also, he should feel free to qualify responses wherever necessary or desirable.

Responses are limited to Yes or No. If only partial responses may be given, note the qualifications below the response. Since some areas require more activity than others, the Yes responses cannot be equally weighted. A simple count of Yes responses is not very meaningful. Each standard and item must be reviewed independently and in the context of the others. Thus, a summary form has been provided on the last page of the instrument. It lists the eight major categories of NSPRA Program Standards, indicates how many evaluation items are included in each category, and provides space for the user to note how many items are being met or not met. Immediately preceding the summary form is a scoring worksheet on which the user should mark his responses.

1. CLEAR CONCEPT OF THE PURPOSES OF THE PUBLIC RELATIONS PROGRAM

The educational organization shall commit to writing a clear and concise policy statement with respect to its public relations program.

YES

NO

Such a policy statement has been prepared.

Background of the Development of Evaluation Instrument for Educational Public Relations Programs

The National School Public Relations Association, with assistance from a special ad hoc committee and a Task Force on Standards, began the development of standards for educational public relations programs and professional personnel in October 1966. Each set of standards was officially adopted by NSPRA Executive Boards early in 1968 and 1969. At that time, work was begun to develop the Evaluation Instrument, based upon the Standards for Educational Public Relations Programs.

Howard O. Merriman, executive director of the Department of Evaluation and Research for the Columbus, Ohio, Public Schools, completed the draft of the Evaluation Instrument. Just as extensive field testing and feedback techniques had been employed by the ad hoc committee and the Task Force on Standards from the beginning years of their study, so the Evaluation Instrument was subjected to careful scrutiny before the final document was printed and distributed. NSPRA members and other educators from broad sections of the country contributed to the final form of the Instrument.

Those individuals who served on the original ad hoc committee were: Joseph L. Davis, assistant superintendent for special services, Columbus, Ohio, Public Schools (chairman); Frank M. Harlacher, Jr., coordinator, public information and publications, Washington County Board of Education, Hagerstown, Maryland, and Thomas E. Robinson, then president of Glassboro State College in Glassboro, New Jersey.

During the four-year period beginning in 1967 until 1971, Lewis R. Applegate, director of public relations for the New Jersey Education Association, Trenton, served as chairman of the Task Force on Standards. He was joined at various times by the following Task Force members: Joseph L. Davis; Daniel K. Hess, then director of information services, Aurora, Illinois, Public Schools, West Side; Joy Reese Shaw, director of public information, Dade County, Florida, Public Schools, Miami; and Ann Weizenegger, director of public information, Green Bay, Wisconsin, District Public Schools.

A subcommittee of the Task Force developed another important NSPRA document, "Ethics for Educational Public Relations." Daniel Hess was chairman of the subcommittee. Working with him were Charles C. Campbell, then administrative assistant to the superintendent of schools, Columbia, Missouri, Public Schools; and Thomas E. Robinson.

Acting as consultant for the three study groups was Dee Preusch, NSPRA director of professional development.

Appendix

Standards for Educational Public Relations Programs

Educational public relations is a planned and systematic two-way process of communication between an educational organization and its internal and external publics. Its program serves to stimulate a better understanding of the role, objectives, accomplishments, and needs of the organization. Educational public relations is a management function which interprets public attitudes, identifies the policies and procedures of an individual organization with the public interest, and executes a program of action to encourage public involvement and to earn public understanding and acceptance.

For the purposes of these public relations program standards, the term "educational organization" includes school districts; community colleges; and national, regional, state, or local associations and agencies.

- I. Clear concept of the purposes of the public relations program
 1. The educational organization shall commit to writing a clear and concise policy statement with respect to its public relations program.
 2. The policy statement shall be approved through formal action of the governing body of the organization, shall be published in its policy manual, and shall be subjected to review by the governing body annually.
 3. The policy statement shall express the purposes of the organization's public relations program and shall provide for the delegation of such authority to the executives of the organization as deemed necessary to facilitate the achievement of such purposes.
 4. The provisions of the policy statement shall be made known to the entire staff or membership of the organization through all appropriate means. As a minimum, the provisions shall be published in the personnel handbook or other publications of the organization.

5. Commitment to the achievement of the purposes of the organization's public relations policy shall be demonstrated through the allocation of adequate human and financial resources to the public relations program.

II. Provision for public relations professional(s) in the organization

6. Recognition of public relations as a management function of primary importance shall be demonstrated through the existence of a public relations unit in the organization staffed by professional public relations personnel.

III. Relationship of the public relations professional to the governing body, the administration, and staff of the organization

7. The executive officer in charge of a public relations unit shall be directly responsible to the chief executive of the organization and shall be a full participating member of his administrative cabinet.
8. The public relations unit of an organization shall function in a counseling capacity to the governing body of the organization and its entire staff or membership.

IV. Provision for adequate resources for the public relations program

A. Professional public relations staffing

A major requirement for a public relations program is staff to develop and carry out that program. Major professional public relations staffing standards (in addition to adequate supporting staff) shall include:

9. Sufficient staff to accomplish the objectives of an organization and to cope with the variety of conditions and problems inherent in specific total programs.
10. As a general rule, a minimum allocation of full-time professional public relations staff shall be as follows for:

a. School district only, based upon size of student enrollments

One or more for up to 24,999 pupils
Two or more for 25,000 to 49,999 pupils
Three or more for 50,000 to 99,999 pupils
Five or more for 100,000 and over

b. State education association only, based upon number of members

One for 1,000 to 5,000 members
 Two for 5,000 to 10,000 members
 Three for 10,000 to 20,000 members
 Four for 20,000 to 30,000 members
 Five for 30,000 to 40,000 members
 Six for 40,000 members and over

(A state association public relations staff member is anyone who is spending a majority of his time carrying out his public relations responsibilities. These are minimum staff requirements and shall be increased in relation to the number of local associations served and/or for state associations having extensive service programs.)

- c. State department of education only, based upon total state department staff
 - (1) At least one full-time professional public relations specialist no matter what is the size of the staff.
 - (2) A minimum staff for a quality PR program for an average size state department of 750 to 1,000 staff members should consist of the following professional staff members:
 - (a) director
 - (b) writer
 - (c) graphic arts specialist
 - (d) editor to handle publication not of a PR nature
 - (3) The professional staff listed above should have or include at least one specialist in each of the following areas, or have access to such contract services.
 - (a) news media relations
 - (b) design and layout of publications
 - (c) photography
 - (d) art
 - (e) broadcast media and film (electronic media)
 - (f) working with local school districts to assist them in their communication programs
 - (g) producer of periodicals requiring journalistic skills (with deadlines involved)
- 11. Local education association only. Local education associations shall seek professional public relations assistance from state and national affiliates and when necessary shall have additional qualified public relations assistance on either a full-time or part-time basis.

12. The public relations staff and consultants shall meet NSPRA's Standards for Educational Public Relations Professionals.
13. Provision shall be made for continuous quality public relations training and development of the members of the professional public relations staff.

B. Operating budget and financing

Operating budgets shall include sufficient funds for the public relations services and programs recommended in these Standards. Provision for financing should be based on such factors as enrollment, membership, total operational expenditures, and special communication needs of the organization. Major public relations services to be financed, other than staff, shall include:

14. Materials and equipment
15. Facilities
16. Technical services--publications, advertising, audiovisual, radio, television, etc.
17. Professional growth activities
18. Research and evaluation.

C. Development of factual information

A reservoir of factual information is essential to the public relations program. This requires a systematic process for providing dependable information for the communications and public relations functions.

19. The organization shall maintain a research program providing information about curriculum, finance, construction, legislation, innovations, staffing, teacher-board relations, population trends, public opinion, and other major areas of concern.
20. The public relations unit shall have immediate access to all research information.
21. The public relations unit shall have authority to initiate or suggest pertinent research studies.

V. Provision for internal communications

A sound and effective system of internal communications is a vital part of the public relations program. This system shall provide for:

22. Identification of specific individuals and groups within an organization with which continuous communications and relationships are required.

23. Procedures for determining what kind of information should be supplied to staff with particular emphasis on relative importance and the degree of staff and public interest.
24. Selection and judicious use of a variety of means and media for communicating with staff.
25. Encouraging, receiving, analyzing, and utilizing of feedback.
26. Quality inservice public relations training for the entire staff or membership of the organization.

VI. Provision for external communications

An effective public relations program must continuously utilize numerous avenues for communications with the public. The external public relations program shall provide for:

27. Identification of specific individuals and community groups with whom continuous communications and relationships are required.
28. Procedures for determining what kind of information should be supplied, with particular emphasis on relative importance and the degree of public interest.
29. Selection and judicious use of a variety of appropriate communication media and channels in general, and mass media in particular.
30. Encouraging, receiving, analyzing, and utilizing of feedback.
31. Identification and involvement of human resources of the community in general, and the community organizations in particular.

VII. Provision for evaluation of program performance

32. The organization shall provide for the evaluation of the performance of its public relations program.
33. The staff or membership of the organization shall be included in any evaluation process.

VIII. Provision for long-range planning

34. The organization shall provide for long-range public relations planning.
35. The organization shall develop a plan for anticipating, preparing for, and dealing with the public relations aspects of crisis situations.
36. Emphasis shall be given to seeking and developing new and different avenues of communications and relationships.

Standards for Educational Public Relations Professionals

An educational public relations professional is a person who performs public relations functions in a staff or executive capacity with an educational organization.

An educational organization, as defined by the NSPRA Standards for Educational Public Relations Programs, includes school districts; community colleges; and national, regional, state, or local associations and agencies.

Executive is defined to mean the person in charge of the public relations program, public relations department, or public relations division in the organization in a public relations position under the public relations executive.

Staff is defined to mean anyone employed in the organization in a public relations position under the public relations executive.

The NSPRA Standards for Educational Public Relations Professionals have been developed for the following purposes:

- (1) To elevate the profession of educational public relations.
- (2) To provide professional development and guidance to the educational public relations professional.
- (3) To provide assistance to administrators of educational organizations seeking to recruit competent public relations professionals.
- (4) To provide assistance to institutions of higher learning in establishing and improving curricula for the training of educational public relations professionals.

I. General Standards

General standards for an educational public relations professional shall include:

- A. Understanding and acceptance of the role of education in a free society.
- B. Understanding and acceptance of the role and social responsibility of public relations for all educational institutions, organizations, and agencies in a free society.
- C. Commitment to the improvement of educational opportunity for all.
- D. Professional performance and ethical behavior in educational public relations as described in NSPRA's Ethics for Educational Public Relations.

II. Specific Standards

Specific standards for an educational public relations professional shall include: (A) Professional preparation, (B) Experience, (C) Demonstrated ability, and (D) Professional growth and development.

A. Professional Preparation

Standards for professional preparation shall include:

- 1. Minimum of a Bachelor's Degree from an accredited college or university.
- 2. Study in the area of communications, including courses such as public relations, journalism, speech, marketing, advertising, graphic arts, radio, television, and writing.
- 3. Study in at least two of the following areas:
 - a. Behavioral sciences--courses such as sociology, political science, psychology, and public administration.
 - b. Education--courses such as school curriculum, methods of teaching, educational psychology, philosophy of education, school administration, and educational public relations.
 - c. Related disciplines--courses and combinations or portions of courses which cover the public relations content not specifically included under communications, behavioral sciences, and education.

B. Experience

Standards for experience shall include at least one or a combination of the following:

- 1. Two years' full-time experience in an executive public relations responsibility with an educational organization.

2. Three years' full-time experience (or the equivalent time) in a staff public relations responsibility with an educational organization.
3. Three years' full-time experience in an executive public relations responsibility with an organization outside the area of education, plus one year in a professional capacity with an educational organization.
4. Four years' full-time experience in a staff public relations responsibility with an organization outside the area of education, plus one year in a professional capacity with an educational organization.
5. Four years' full-time experience in mass communications (press, radio, television, etc.) with news, editorial, or program responsibilities, plus one year in a professional capacity with an educational organization.
6. Five years' full-time experience in a professional capacity, plus one year in a full-time public relations responsibility, with an educational organization.
7. Three years' full-time experience as a college teacher of school public relations or related communications courses, plus either one year in a full-time public relations responsibility with an educational organization or three years of public relations consultant experience to educational organizations.

C. Demonstrated Ability

Standards for demonstrated ability shall include, in general, a working knowledge of comprehensive internal and external public relations programs, a mastery of basic communication skills, and a sensitivity to the importance of two-way communication. Specifically, the educational public relations professional shall demonstrate these abilities through six or more of the following:

1. Employing effective human relations practices in the performance of public relations responsibilities.
2. Perceiving, identifying, and determining the implications of educational public relations problems.
3. Creating, proposing, and conducting activities designed to solve educational public relations problems.
4. Conducting continuous public relations activities that depend upon the nature, structure, and functions of mass media.
5. Planning, developing, and executing specific public relations projects essential to campaigns, interpretation of innovations, or other major activities.

6. Planning, developing, and using feedback processes, including opinion surveys.
7. Identifying and working with elements of power structures.
8. Identifying and working with individuals and citizens groups in the development and execution of the organization's program.
9. Involving staff and/or members of the organization in the development and execution of the organization's public relations program.

D. Professional Growth and Development

Standards for professional growth and development require that the educational public relations professional continue to refine his skills and expand his knowledge through:

1. Participating in recognized public relations seminars, conferences, workshops, and institutes.
2. Maintaining membership and participation in professional public relations associations and societies.
3. Pursuing additional study beyond Bachelor's Degree requirements in the areas listed under "Professional Preparation" (Standard II-A above).
4. Reading, researching, writing, speaking, and consulting in public relations.

Ethics for Educational Public Relations

FOREWORD

In July 1969, the president of the National School Public Relations Association appointed a subcommittee of the Task Force on Standards to study educational public relations ethics and professional practices.

During the study, it became evident to the subcommittee that the educational public relations profession was growing in both numbers and importance. It became even more apparent that a statement on ethics and professional practices should be drafted.

It was recommended by the subcommittee that this statement should serve two purposes. It should outline the basic public relations principles to be followed by every person in education and should also identify those guidelines to be followed by the educational public relations professional.

The Preamble, therefore, applies to all educators, all of whom are engaged in some manner with public relations responsibilities.

The Code of Ethics is designed to apply to the public relations professional with major responsibility for public relations.

PREAMBLE

Every educational organization* has its many, varied publics with which it must maintain effective relations. Public relations must be an integral part of the total education enterprise, and everyone within that enterprise must recognize his public relations functions, responsibilities, and ethical obligations. Because all educational public relations must be founded upon certain basic precepts, we believe public relations practices should reflect the high ethical standards established by the National School Public Relations Association.

*An educational organization, as defined by the NSPRA Educational Public Relations Standards for Programs, includes school districts; community colleges; and national, regional, state, or local education associations and agencies.

All persons in education, we believe, must accept a general responsibility for the development of effective public relations. In accordance with this general responsibility they must:

- o Seek continuously the improvement of educational opportunities for all children, youth, and adults.
- o Strive for professional growth and self-improvement.
- o Strive, within the area of their particular responsibilities, to enhance the communication concepts and expand the activities leading to more effective interpretation of the objectives, accomplishments, problems, and needs of education.
- o Utilize the growing number of resources and techniques of proven value in the field of public relations.
- o Be loyal to public relations ideals and practices and also to the best interests of the organization they serve, striving constantly to harmonize the two loyalties.
- o Maintain high standards of personal and professional conduct, guided in all activities by truth, accuracy, fairness, and good taste.
- o Hold themselves accountable for the truth, accuracy, fairness, good taste, and general objectivity of their public utterances, both written and spoken.
- o Preserve the confidentiality of data which have been given under conditions of trust and promise.

CODE OF ETHICS

These ethics for the educational public relations professional have been adopted by the National School Public Relations Association to promote and maintain the highest standards of personal and professional behavior and practice; to reaffirm that educational public relations is regarded as a profession; and to instill increasing public confidence in the integrity of the educational communications professional. These principles of ethics are not laws but standards by which an individual professional may determine the propriety of his conduct and relationships with each colleague, member of other professions, and with the many publics he serves.

SECTION I

The public relations professional with all his publics shall be guided constantly by truth, accuracy, good taste, and fairness.

A. He shall honor a system of fairness and good judgment in the release of educational information to the news media.

- B. He shall not intentionally disseminate misinformation. The unintentional release of misinformation shall be immediately rectified.
- C. He shall do nothing to lessen the personal reputation upon which his professional effectiveness rests.
- D. He shall do nothing to lessen the reputation of the organization.

Section II

The public relations professional shall give his primary loyalty and support to the educational organization which employs him, but he shall insist on the right to give advisory counsel in accordance with public relations ideals and practices.

- A. A public relations professional shall, whenever possible, cooperate with other educational organizations or groups so long as his association with such groups does not cause major continuing conflict with his primary responsibility to his own organization.
- B. The public relations professional shall notify his employer when policies or activities of the organization place him in an untenable position and when his employment forces him to promote activities in opposition to the principles of this Code.

Section III

The public relations professional shall be especially aware of the influence he wields, and he shall neither promise nor grant unprofessional advantages to those having special ties or relationships with him.

- A. He shall be especially careful, as a member of a staff with special skills and information, in providing services of a political nature for persons aspiring to elected educational positions.
- B. The rights of a public relations professional to exercise his privileges as a citizen and to use his special skills outside his hours of employment, in ways not adverse to the special interest of the employing agency, shall not be abridged.
- C. A public relations professional in a position to exercise influence on his own organization's policies and decisions shall refrain from accepting special gratuities.
- D. He shall not use for personal gain, except with the express permission of the employing organization, any of the facilities or materials which are provided for him in his employment.
- E. He shall avoid any derogatory acts or utterances designed to affect the employment of another professional.

Section IV

The public relations professional shall recognize that his effectiveness now and in the future is dependent in a large degree upon his own personal integrity and regard for the ideals of the profession as exemplified in this Code.

- A. He shall not misrepresent his professional qualifications.
- B. He shall in all of his activities faithfully observe copyright laws and shall give due credit to those individuals whose thoughts and words are borrowed and used.
- C. He shall cooperate with his professional colleagues to uphold and enforce this Code.

Constitution and Bylaws National School Public Relations Association

Constitution

Article I - Name. The name of this organization shall be the National School Public Relations Association. The National School Public Relations Association shall be an Associated Organization of the National Education Association of the United States.

Article II - Purposes and Limitations. Section 1. The purpose of the National School Public Relations Association shall be to serve the citizenry of the Nation by promoting a better understanding of the objectives, accomplishments, and needs of the schools of the United States. The Association seeks to accomplish its purpose: (1) by encouraging the use of sound public relations procedures by all those at work in the schools of America; (2) by placing before the public facts and viewpoints which will lead to a better understanding, appreciation, and support of their schools; (3) and by developing materials that will assist the schools of the Nation in building an increased public understanding of the role of education.

Section 2. The Association shall at all times be operated on a nonprofit basis and shall engage exclusively in activities consistent with its purpose and with its status as an organization described in Section 501 (c) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code as now or hereafter amended, or any statutory provisions superseding or succeeding said Section 501 (c) (3), and without limitation shall not devote any of its activities to political campaign efforts on behalf of any candidate for public office and shall not devote any substantial part of its activities to attempting, by propaganda or otherwise, to influence legislation.

No part of the net earnings of the Association shall inure to the benefit of any member, sponsor, donor, creator, trustee, officer, employee, or, without limitation, any other private individual or to the benefit of any corporation, organization, any part of the net earnings of which inure to the benefit of any private individual or any substantial part of the activities of which is carrying on propaganda or otherwise attempting to influence legislation; provided, this shall not prevent payment of reasonable compensation for services actually rendered to or for the Association in effecting its purposes.

The Association shall not divert any part of its income or corpus to any member, sponsor, donor, creator, trustee, officers, or employees, by lending any part of its income or property without the receipt of adequate security and a reasonable rate of interest; by paying any compensation in excess of reasonable allowance for salaries, or other compensation for personal services actually rendered; by making any purchase of security or other property for more than adequate consideration for money or money's worth; by selling any substantial part of its securities or other property for less than adequate consideration for money or money's worth; or by engaging in any other transaction which, either directly or indirectly, results in such diversion of its income or property. The Association shall not make any accumulation of its income unreasonable in amount or duration, or use any income for purposes other than the objects hereinbefore set forth or invest income in any manner as to jeopardize the fulfillment or carrying out of its objects. In general, the Association shall not act in any way or engage in any activity which might affect its right to full tax exemption or the right of donors to the Association to full tax deduction of their contributions to the Association, and the Association shall be so operated as to be entitled to and receive all tax exemptions, federal or local, which may from time to time be granted to charitable, scientific, or educational associations or foundations.

Article III - Membership. Section 1. Any person shall be eligible to apply for Active Membership who carries out special public relations responsibilities in a public or private educational institution, or in a local, regional, state, or national education agency or association; or who is a higher-education-institution administrator or teacher directly involved in preparing persons for careers in educational administration or educational communication.

Section 2. Any person who is actively interested in advancing the cause of education but who is not eligible for Active Membership may become an Associate Member and shall be entitled to all the rights and privileges except the right to vote and hold office.

Article IV - Officers. Section 1. Officers of this Association shall be a President; a President-Elect (who shall become President after one year's service as President-Elect); a Vice-President at Large; six other Vice-Presidents distributed geographically in the Northeast, Southeast, North Central, South Central, Northwest, and Southwest sections of the United States and the Territories; and an Executive Director. The President, President-Elect, and the seven Vice-Presidents shall constitute the Executive Board. (The Northeast area shall include: Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont, District of Columbia. The Southeast area shall include: Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands. The North Central area shall include: Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, North Dakota, Ohio, South Dakota, Wisconsin. The South Central area shall include: Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas. The Northwest area shall include: Alaska, Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington, Wyoming. The Southwest area shall include: Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah.)

Section 2. The Executive Director and the Vice-President at Large shall be selected by the Executive Board.

Section 3. The President-Elect shall hold office for a period of one year, beginning the first Sunday after the Association's Annual Meeting following his election as President-Elect, and shall become President one year later, beginning on the first Sunday after the Association's Annual Meeting. The President shall hold office for the period of one year. Elected Vice-Presidents shall hold office for two years, beginning on the first Sunday after the Association's Annual Meeting following their election, three retiring each year. Vice-Presidents from the Southeast, South Central, and Northwest areas shall be elected in the even calendar years, and Vice-Presidents from the Northeast, North Central, and Southwest areas shall be elected in the odd calendar years. No elective officer shall serve in the same capacity for more than two consecutive terms.

Section 4. The Vice-President at Large shall hold office for a period of one year beginning the first Sunday after the Association's Annual Meeting following his selection by the Executive Board. He may, however, be re-appointed to an additional term of office except that he shall not serve in the office for more than two consecutive terms.

Article V - Election of Officers. Section 1. The election of the President-Elect and the three Vice-Presidents to succeed those whose terms are expiring shall be conducted by mailing an annual ballot to all Active Members of the Association. The three Vice-Presidents, however, shall be elected only by members within their respective geographic areas. A resident of any state which has had one of its members serving as a Vice-President for the immediately preceding two terms of office shall be ineligible for election as a Vice-President. The ballot shall be mailed on or before March 10 and returned not later than midnight of March 31. The person who receives the plurality in the ballot for each office shall be declared elected by the Executive Board. In case of a tie, the successful candidate shall be determined by ballot of the Executive Board. On or before July 1 the Board of Tellers shall officially certify and announce the results of the election.

Section 2. A Nominating Committee appointed by the President shall present a slate of not more than two candidates for each elective office.

Article VI - Meetings. Meetings of this Association shall be held at such times and places as shall be determined by the Executive Board of the Association. One of these meetings shall be designated by the Executive Board as the Annual Meeting. The Active Members present at the Annual Meeting shall constitute a quorum for the conduct of business. Notice of this meeting shall be sent to all Members.

Article VII - Standing Committees. The Standing Committees of this Association shall consist of a Nominating Committee, an Audit Committee, and a Board of Tellers of not less than three Members each. Other committees may be authorized by the Executive Board or by the Association from time to time. Committees shall serve for one year.

Article VIII - Dissolution. Upon dissolution, all of the assets of the Association shall be turned over to such nonprofit tax-exempt charitable, scientific, or educational organization as the final Executive Board of the Association shall select.

Article IX - Amendments. This Constitution may be amended by a two-thirds vote of the Active Members present at any Annual Meeting of the Association, or by a two-thirds vote of Active Members voting by mail ballot, provided the proposed amendment shall have been approved by the Executive Board and submitted to the membership at least thirty days prior to the Annual Meeting or the mail ballot.

Bylaws

Article I - Duties of Officers. Section 1. It shall be the duty of the President to preside or to arrange for presiding officers at all meetings and in conjunction with the Executive Board to prepare programs for the Annual and other meetings of the Association, and to appoint all committees not otherwise provided for. He shall be chairman and a member of the Executive Board and shall call meetings of this Board whenever he deems it necessary or whenever he is requested to so do by a majority of the membership of the Board. He shall perform all other duties commonly associated with his office.

Section 2. The President-Elect shall preside at meetings in the absence of the President. In case of vacancy in the office of President, the President-Elect shall at once succeed to the office of President to fill out the unexpired term, and shall continue to serve as President for the full term to which he has been elected.

Article II - Duties of the Executive Director. The Executive Director shall keep a complete and accurate record of the proceedings of all meetings of the Association and all meetings of the Executive Board; shall conduct the business of the Association as provided by the Constitution and Bylaws; and in all matters not definitely prescribed therein be under the direction of the Executive Board, and in the absence of direction by the Executive Board, shall be under the direction of the President. He shall receive all moneys due the Association and, subject to the direction or regulations of the Executive Board, deposit such moneys or invest them in securities. Furthermore, the Executive Director, upon approval of the Executive Board, is authorized to make such business arrangements with the National Education Association relative to insurance, retirement, payrolls, and such other transactions as are feasible, practical, and mutually acceptable. Consistent with an annual budget approved by the Executive Board, he shall approve the payment of bills and make such other expenditures as are necessary for the conduct of the business of the Association. He shall be secretary of the Executive Board and custodian of all property of the Association. He shall submit an annual report to the Executive Board at each annual meeting. He shall serve during the pleasure of the Executive Board.

Article III - Duties of Committees. Section 1. The Executive Board shall assist the President in arranging for meetings, shall authorize the appointment of committees, and shall formulate the policies for the program and services of the Association.

Section 2. The Audit Committee shall make its report at the next Annual Meeting following its appointment.

Article IV - Dues. The dues of this Association shall be $15 per year for both Active and Associate Members.

Article V - Chapters. Section 1. The Executive Board may establish Chapters of the Association on petition of ten or more Members in good standing in a given area. In each instance, the exact territory of Chapter jurisdiction shall be determined by the Executive Board. Chapter members shall be Members of the national Association. Chapters may establish dues for their members in addition to the dues paid to the national Association. Chapters shall elect their own officers. Bylaws of each Chapter shall be approved by the Executive Board of the Association before adoption by the Chapter. Amendments to the Bylaws of a Chapter must be approved by the Executive Board of the national Association to become effective. A Member may belong to and vote in only one local (city, county, or area) Chapter, although dual membership in a local and a statewide Chapter is permissible. Membership may be transferred from one Chapter to another if approved by the latter Chapter.

Section 2. Upon evidence of Chapter inactivity for a period of two consecutive years, the Executive Board of the Association has the authority to revoke the Chapter charter.

Article VI - Vacancies. All vacancies occurring in any office other than that of President or President-Elect shall be filled by the Executive Board. Vacancy in the office of President-Elect caused by the succession of the President-Elect to the Presidency, as provided in Article I, Section 2, shall remain unfilled until the first Sunday after the Association's Annual Meeting. In all other cases, vacancy in the office of President-Elect shall be filled by a special election conducted in the same manner that the Constitution provides for holding the annual election of officers.

Article VII - Rules of Order. Robert's Rules of Order (revised) shall govern in all business meetings of this Association in all cases to which they are applicable and in which they are not inconsistent with the Constitution and Bylaws of this Association.

Article VIII - Amendments. These Bylaws may be amended by a majority vote of the Active Members present at any Annual Meeting of the Association, or by a majority vote of Active Members voting by mail ballot, provided the proposed amendment shall have been approved by the Executive Board and submitted to the membership at least thirty days prior to the Annual Meeting or the mail ballot.
